The Index Performance Strategy 1-Year Term

Potential for higher performance with a level of protection from smaller index losses.

The Index Performance Strategy may be a good choice if you are looking for a level of protection for your principal, while maintaining the potential for growth opportunities. See how it works with four possible outcomes:

If the annual index return is positive, you’ll receive an annual performance credit equal to that return, up to a limit called the cap. This gives you the potential for growth opportunities.

If the annual index return is negative, you may receive an annual negative performance credit – but only when the loss is greater than the 10% buffer. This helps provide a level of protection.

POSSIBLE OUTCOME 1:
If the annual index return is positive, but less than the declared cap, the annual performance credit would be equal to the index return.

POSSIBLE OUTCOME 2:
If the annual index return exceeds the declared cap, a performance credit equal to the cap would be applied.

POSSIBLE OUTCOME 3:
If the annual index return is negative, but within the 10% buffer, the performance credit would be zero. The buffer absorbs the first 10% of negative index return in a given term.

POSSIBLE OUTCOME 4:
If the annual index return is negative and exceeds the 10% buffer, there would be a negative performance credit equal to the amount of negative returns in excess of the buffer.

The buffer is helpful for smaller losses, but does not fully protect against more significant index declines. You could experience a loss during a term if the index declines more than the downside protection of the 10% buffer.

Current caps may be different from what is represented in the examples. You may not be able to participate fully in a market recovery due to the capped upside potential in subsequent terms.

For certain products this can be uncapped. If the index option is uncapped you will receive the annual index return if positive.
